THE GRADUATE

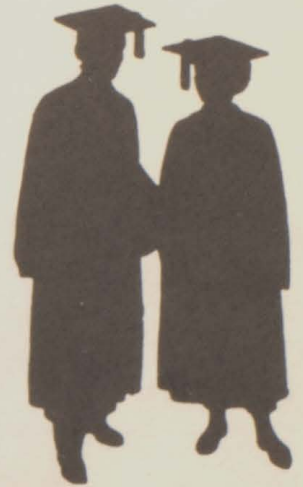

Dedicated to the Class of '69, Rochester High School

Now lies ahead a broader way
Than that which you have lately trod,
You leave the path of yesterday
To seek a wider, longer road.

Yet in this newer, stranger fold
That challenges your will to win,
The same commandments still will hold
To meet the tasks that time will bring.

The lessons learned, the friendships made,
In one small segment of the whole,
Will help you mount the steeper grade
That leads you to the final goal.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance and that it has not been completely solved. The author then proceeds to a detailed analysis of the problem, showing that it is a special case of a more general problem. The author then discusses the various methods that have been used to solve the problem, and shows that the method proposed in this paper is the most effective. The paper concludes with a summary of the results and a list of references.

2. The second part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the problem. It is shown that the problem is a special case of a more general problem. The author then discusses the various methods that have been used to solve the problem, and shows that the method proposed in this paper is the most effective. The paper concludes with a summary of the results and a list of references.

The first play of the evening was "The Secret Weapon", directed by Mrs. Taylor. It was the story of the ordinary housewife and mother who needs an escape from all the responsibilities occasionally. Carol Severy expertly and convincingly fainted, and Judy Judd was excellent in the role of the typical little sister.

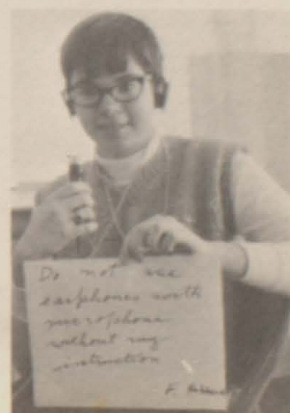

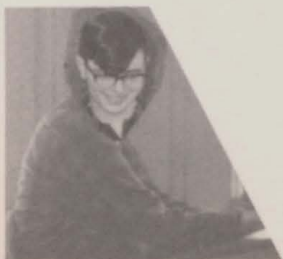

Next came Mrs. Martin's comedy, "Shock of His Life", where misunderstanding led to misunderstanding. Louis Donnet, as Wilber, couldn't seem to get anything straight, and so his poor father, Steve Sherman, spent a miserable evening, complete with red devils. And at the end even his wife, Carla Martin, and two daughters laugh with the audience.

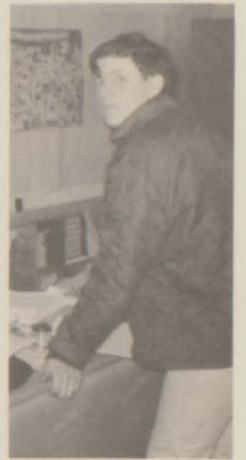

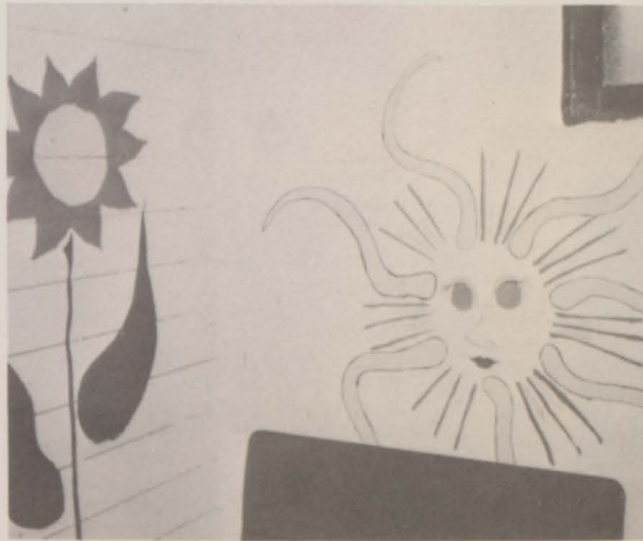

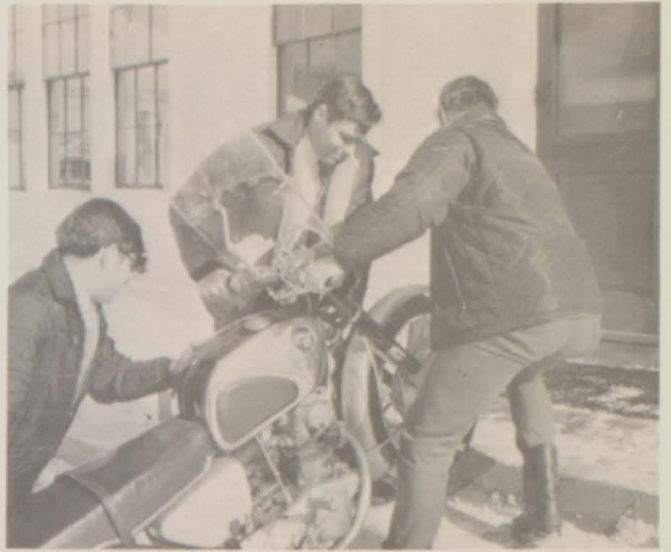

Mr. Goupee's "Shoes and Ships" was full of ad-lib comedy. The audience roared when Laele Martin and Susan Bannister, the two Spanish ladies, tripped and stumbled all over the stage. And it was sure Ricky Blair and the actors had everyone hopping.

We, the Seniors ...

I, Peg Maston, will my hill to Mr. Lary for mountain climbing.

I, Jody Severy, will to Laele Martin my small feet so she doesn't fall all over everybody.

I, Harold Smead, will to the school my body heat to help keep it warm.

I, Steven Sherman, will to the class of '70 the Class of '69's last place in the Magazine Drive.

I, Barry Wilber, will to Carl Comes my nickname "Flash".

I, Linda Sargeant, will to Nancy Darrah my cuddly Teddy Bear. Good luck, Nance.

I, Carol Harvey, will to Mr. Garon my tin sheers. Try them on the hair under your nose.

I, Gay Hill, will to Mr. Davis my ability to ski. Watch out kiddies!

I, Bill Wood, will to Mr. Lary my hair so he can keep his ears warm during the winter.

I, Pam Martin, will to Dianne Martin my skirt lengths so she won't have to wear long shirts.

I, Craig Laffan, will to Tim Simpson my big job nights at Stan's Gulf. It's a good way to get out of the house nights.

I, Valerie Stoddard, will to the library my Edmunds Essay to be used for future "reference".

I, Jane Mills, will to Susan Bannister my blonde hair so she won't have to keep doing things to hers to make it blonde.

I, Jackie Martin, will to Mr. Hood, my coonskin coat. Since that's the closest he'll ever get to big game.

I, Dave Bagley, will to Jim Parrish my side burns so he won't have to buy his.

I, Bev O'Neil, will to Mary Donnet my long dresses.

I, Carla Martin, will to anyone so unfortunate as to take Chemistry next year, my chemistry notebook. At least you will flunk gracefully.

I, Jean Perry, will to Mr. Hood my smile. You won't crack your face if you try it.

1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold. It was a sharp contrast to the warm blanket I had been sitting under. I shivered slightly, but then I remembered that this was just the beginning. The car was parked in front of a large, imposing building that looked like it had been built in the 19th century. The architecture was a mix of Gothic and Romanesque styles, with tall, arched windows and a series of buttresses that supported the roof. I walked towards the entrance, my boots crunching on the cobblestone path. The door was made of dark wood, with a large, ornate handle. I pushed it open, and a warm, fragrant air greeted me. It smelled like old books and freshly baked bread. I stepped inside, and the world seemed to change. The walls were covered in tapestries of various sizes, depicting scenes from medieval times. The floor was made of polished stone, and the ceiling was high, with a series of wooden beams. I walked further into the room, and I noticed that there were several other people here. They were all dressed in period clothing, and they seemed to be engaged in some kind of activity. I approached a group of people who were gathered around a long table. They were looking at some papers, and I noticed that they were all men. I introduced myself, and they welcomed me. They told me that this was a library, and that they were working on a project. I asked them what the project was, and they told me that it was a study of the history of the city. They said that they had found a lot of interesting information, and they were trying to put it all together. I listened to them, and I realized that this was a great opportunity for me. I had always been interested in history, and now I had a chance to learn more. I asked them if I could help them, and they agreed. They gave me a tour of the library, and I saw a lot of interesting things. There were shelves filled with books, and there were tables with papers and quills. I saw a man who was writing on a scroll, and I saw a woman who was looking at a map. I saw a lot of other people, and I realized that this was a place where people were working hard to learn and discover. I felt like I had found a new home. I stayed in the library for a few days, and I learned a lot. I saw a lot of interesting things, and I met a lot of interesting people. I realized that this was a place where I could learn and grow. I stayed in the library for a few days, and I learned a lot. I saw a lot of interesting things, and I met a lot of interesting people. I realized that this was a place where I could learn and grow.

I, Joyce Parrish, will to Mr. Garon my can of hair spray, so he can curl his mustache.

I, Sidney Twitchell, will to Mr. Carlson my ability to hunt so he can shoot himself.

I, Ricky Blair, will to anyone who wants to repair it, my motorcycle.

I, Jakey Kinsley, will my math book and my front row seat in French to anybody who wants them.

I, Anita Carbonell, will to any underclassman stupid enough to want it, my ability to argue over anything.

I, Dave Perry, will to Butch Mills my ability to drive carelessly and negligently. Can you find room for it, Butch?

I, Louis Donnet, will to Chuck Simpson my telephone book for out-of-town girls.

I, Dave Domina, will to Mr. Garon my motorcycle so he'll be ready when Hell's Angels come to Vermont.

I, Ron Blair, will to Jim Parrish my ability to lie, so he can catch up to Butch Mills.

I, Lucia Norton, will to Mr. Carlson my eye brow pencil to make his side burns show up better.

I, Ricky Andrews, will to Kathy Harvey my Honda, boots, and helmet; keep it under 80 in the winter time.

I, Gary Bannister, will to Mr. Davis my songs so he can start a chorus of his own.

I, Mary Rogers, will to the Establishment my one-two day vacations every so often.

I, Maxine Downs, will to Lana Bagley my ability to keep a boy for longer than two weeks.

We, Craig Gage and Doug Shaw, are taking it all with us.
