The Class of 2006 dedicates their yearbook to two teachers who they feel have supported, encouraged and assisted us throughout high school: Maria Ung and Sue Brennan. Sue has been one of our English teachers for several years. We loved the way you made English exciting and interesting. We will miss you. Maria has been our Math and Science teacher for the last 3 years and she was our Senior Class Advisor. Maria was such an amazing teacher, and everyone learned so much from her. She was always willing to do anything that we needed her to do, to support our class in any way. We could not have asked for a better class advisor who was as supportive and fun as Maria was. We will miss both of these teachers and we thank them for everything they did for us and for Rochester School.

David Hamberlin

Born: June 9, 1988

Nicknames: Hammie; D-boy

Hobbies and Such:

Hearing music; making music; long walks in the middle of the night; losing at Nintendo games; playing darkish role-playing games; concocting bizarre, faulty schemes for world domination; making a fool of myself.

Future plans and Aspirations:

Outdance the Presbyterian minister; get famous and sell out; probably that whole college bit, too.

Will:

Doug ~ Some  sleep

Bernie Doom ~ May your enhanced titanium skeleton work flawlessly.

Billy ~ Mad guitar skills and some sleep.

David ~ Protection from haircuts and the ability to pass it ... duhn duhn duhn duhn duhn

Andy McF ~ Limitless adventures, a thousand memories of groovin' to the funky music and a short one with freckles ... maybe some legible handwriting, too.

Blip ~ The ability to help those you want to help and the willingness to be a bit more self-serving when you don't want to help. Also the ability to see the beauty in yourself that is so apparent to everyone else.

Everyone else ~ the compassion to forgive me for not including you. It's probably not because I hate you. It may very well be because I'm sleep-deprived and couldn't think of anything good for you.

Casey, Micah, and everyone else who hasn't suffered through this past school year with me ~ I love you tremendously. Forgive my not willing you anything. You probably won't read this anyhow.

Above-average Memories:

It's late the night before this is due and my memory is failing. Give me a call sometime and we can reminisce on a more personal level. A certain night running circles in the parking lot comes to mind as being particularly enjoyable.

And finally:

Erica and Andrew ~ Thank you both so much for making my life infinitely better. You're wonderful.

Birthday: October 25th 1987

Quote: "Live each day to the fullest because tomorrow is not promised" – Unknown

Hobbies/Interests: Anything that has anything to do with medicine. Camping, spending time with pets, and acting in plays.

Memorable moments:

The whole year 04-05 that Irati was here, we had many laughs and silly times. Moving into host family's houses with Irati; walking to the Tunbridge Fair gates (with Irati and the McKinley's). Irati, Kirsten D. and I camping out in the back yard (mad libs and shadow puppets). * Many walks and heart to heart chats with Emily Dunham. *Reflecting on the past w/ Sarah P. *Labor Day weekend with Kalen Cassidy (Krugs) *Morning conversations with Becky D. *Pulling all nighters w/Andrew M. and David H., running races around the school parking lot in the snow. Laughing at Andrew's ramblings when he is sleep-deprived. J * Every moment I got to spend with David H. Going to see Johnny A. play at Higher Ground. *Meeting Micah and the whole group in Randolph. *Attending Victory's Requiem performances. You guys are awesome! * And all the rare moments I got to spend with Eli.

Potential Plans: Go to college become a R.N. and hopefully make it to Spain one day.

Special Thanks:

First and foremost to Mrs. Schulze, you are an incredible, patient person for putting up with me all these years. Thank you for helping me through it all! Rochester students are lucky to have such a caring person there to help them.

Thanks to my whole family for your support through the years. Grandma, thank you for helping me with every project I got into and all the costumes and formal dresses you made me. Thank you for being there to listen to me vent. Grandpa, thank you for always helping me with my car issues and looking out for me. Mom, thank you for helping me with all the college financial aid paperwork. I love you all very much!

Final Words:

Sarah ~ I hope that everything in your future goes well and I hope we will keep in touch after high school.

Andrew M ~ I hope that you get any girl in college that you want. Thank you for being such a good friend to me.

Kirsten D ~ I hope that you will always keep your head up and be in as many plays as you can!

Becky D ~ I hope that you continue to be so friendly and good luck if you go on to French III.

David H ~ you are an amazing person! I am confident that anything you set your mind to, you will conquer. Thank you for being my best friend and always making me smile. "I love you Blip."

Eli (Binz) ~ I couldn't have asked for a better brother! I want you to know that I am always here for you! You can talk to me anytime about anything! Good luck on all your relationships and know that I will always love you!

GRADUATION

Rochester HS Graduates

By Martha Slater

Although occasional dark clouds rolled overhead on the morning of Saturday, June 17, no raindrops marred the two-hour graduation ceremony for Rochester High School's Class of 2006.

Held in its traditional location on the park in the center of town, the event was filled, as always, with pageantry, laughter, sentiment, excitement, pride, good advice, and a palpable feeling of community. The school band played as class marshals Molly Harvey and Sandra Dunham led the blue and white robed almost-graduates across the park to their seats in front of a large crowd of family members, teachers, friends, and neighbors.

Following opening remarks from Principal Robert Gray and Assistant Principal Dr. Valerie Levitan, salutatorian Ben Kingsbury stepped to the podium.

"It's really amazing how fast it all went by," he observed. "Growing up in Rochester has been interesting...this valley is the epitome of small town in today's ever-growing world." Noting the pros and cons of that fact, Kingsbury observed that "Kids have always made dumb mistakes...and these get magnified when everyone knows everyone as they do here...the important thing is to learn from them and apply them to our lives, not wallow in and consume ourselves with them. Live and learn, and remember that others are doing the same."

Both Kingsbury, and valedictorian Andrew McFarlin, who spoke next, made a point of expressing their appreciation for support they and their fellow students received from the community.

Noting the recent controversy over the town's school budget, McFarlin said, "I am proud to live in a society where education is important enough for people to work together and overcome differences of opinion for the sake of their future...I think I got as fine an education here as any student in America."

During his remarks, McFarlin quoted Alvin Toffler's observation that "The illiterate of the 21st century will not be those who cannot read or write, but those who cannot learn, unlearn, and re-learn," adding, "Here in Rochester, I have done those three things many times over." He concluded, "ad vitam paramus," (we are preparing for life, for all of time).

Valedictorian Andrew McFarlin

Mountains, but it's you, its people, who provide the pulse." He illustrated that point by praising the school's Senior Projects program, observing, "It's nice to have a school that takes its lessons out of the classroom and appreciates the value of community."

Joking that "what I wanted to hear when I was in those seats nine years ago was 'it's over, you're done,'" Blair concluded, "Remember that school is something you complete, but your life is an ongoing process."

Following the presentation of diplomas by school board chairman Becky Donnet, the now-official graduates flung their caps skyward and processed across the park to form a receiving line and receive congratulations from the community.

Salutatorian Ben Kingsbury

Justice of the Peace Kevin Dougherty administered the Freeman's Oath to all of the graduates who were 18 or older, and Athletic Director George Moltz announced the senior athletic awards. The Roxanne Curtis Bowen Award went to Dayna Bourassa, and the Damian Sleath Memorial Award was shared by Tristan Klein and Kyle Wilson.

The commencement speaker was Adam Blair, a 1997 graduate of Rochester High School, who earned a B.F.A. in film and video production from the Rochester (N.Y.) Institute of Technology, and is now an award-winning photographer for WCAX-TV in Burlington.

"My career affords me the opportunity to travel all over the state and meet all kinds of people," Blair said. "Our state is a place where traditions, a strong work ethic, and pride are valued; and some would say the same about this town...Rochester lies in the heart of the Green
